LOCAL BALL TEAMS IN FINAL

Baseballers Get Into Final Game
Junior to Play Brooks Juniors

The local baseball club drew a bye into the final for the Draper & Maynard cup for which the teams in the irrigation league are now playing off. The final game will be played in Brooks on Sunday, Aug. 12, at 2:00 o'clock p.m.

The Bassano Juniors are also in the final, and will play Brooks Juniors on the same day as the intermediate final in Brooks.

Bassano Juniors have been playing strong all summer, and have lost only one league game. They defeated Rainier Juniors in the first game of the cup playoff, after finishing at the top of the league. The other junior teams have not competed in the playoffs, so a game has been arranged between Brooks and Bassano Juniors to decide the cup winners.

Patricia eliminated Brooks from the playoffs last Sunday when they defeated the Brooks squad 4-2. On the same day in a game at Rosemary the Ramblers moved up another notch by winning over Dueson 4-2.

Rosemary and Patricia will play the semi-final game in Brooks next Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, the winners to meet Bassano in the final.

The Ramblers are favored to win next Sunday, but anything may happen in a ball game. The Patricia team has been strengthened recently, and in the past two or three games they have been playing good ball.

Baseballers Have
The Baseballers didn't play last Sunday, and they are not scheduled for next Sunday, but to overcome this Manager Lloyd Housh has arranged a game between the Bassano Juniors and intermediate teams to be played at the local ball park next Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Both teams want to keep in shape for the final games in Brooks on Aug. 12th.

Queenstown Beats Juniors
Playing without their regular pitcher, Perry Johnson, and other stars, the Juniors were defeated by Queenstown last Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 3, in Bassano. The visitors put up a classy brand of ball and ran away with the game.

NEW WHEAT IS NOW ROLLING IN

T. N. Simpson Delivers First 1933 Wheat to Bassano Elevators—Yield is Light

The first load of 1933 wheat was delivered to the Alberta Pool elevator in Bassano Wednesday of this week, Aug. 2. It came from the farm of T. N. Simpson, just north of town, and graded No. 1 Northern.

The wheat was of a good color, and the kernels were fairly well developed. It was considered a very good sample of grain so produced in an exceptionally dry year like this.

Mr. Simpson and his son Alvin started the combine Wednesday morning, and now have their harvesting operations in full swing.

Mr. Simpson estimates the area where he is now cutting, on the east side of the road, is running about six bushels to the acre. He has a better looking field on the west side of the road that should yield somewhat higher.

E. F. Maurer also started combining Wednesday of this week. Mr. Maurer estimates his grain is running seven bushels to the acre, and his sample is nice looking wheat.

Other farmers are cutting with the binder and combining, and harvesting will be general in a day or two.

On Tuesday a light rain fell, just enough to lay the dust. The following figures were recorded by C.P.R. D.W.T. rain gauge:

Bassano Dam 36 inch
D.W.T. rain gauge 36 inch
Comery 36 inch
Gem 36 inch

WHEAT FLUCTUATES
After bounding upward nine cents on Tuesday, wheat futures slumped four cents on Wednesday's session at the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Closing prices, Wednesday were: October 36 1-4; December 36 3-4; May 31 1-2.

Liverpool failed to reflect the strength shown on North American markets Tuesday, and prices weakened.

According to radio reports prices were steady at Winnipeg on Thursday.

The late Mr. McLean was known to all the old timers in the surrounding country, and he had a wide circle of friends and acquaintances among those who have moved to this neighborhood within the past few years. Canada launches new loan on London market.

LONDON, July 31.—Calling the flotation of Canada's $75,000,000 loan in London a "great imperial event," British newspapers, led by the Times, emphasized on Monday how thoughts of all international borrowers had turned from New York to London as the world's soundest financial centre.

"Owing to the close economic and financial relations of the Dominion with the United States," said the Times, "the Canadian dollar has revolved mainly within the orbit of the wildly fluctuating United States dollar."

"By raising the new loan in London, Canada will associate herself more closely financially to sterling and therefore her action is to be regarded on economic as well as financial grounds."

Other newspapers predict undoubted success of Canada's new loan.

A newspaper despatch says Gandhi was arrested before he had planned to launch a new disobedient campaign in India. That's the first time we heard of Gandhi's arrest.

With wheat futures soaring seven cents one day and shipping back three or four cents the next, the grain processor is getting plenty of thrills for his money these days.

With Alberta's crop condition only 61 per cent normal, as reported a few days ago by one of the large grain companies, the province will harvest one of the poorest wheat crops in years. On the same day last year the crop was 93 per cent normal.

On dry land in the Bassano district the crop will be only about half that of last year.

This makes the fourth successive short crop year, and everybody realizes that after the third year it gets pretty tough.

Although this year's crop will be exceptionally small, this will be partly compensated for by the increase in price. Wheat today is 64 cents a bushel in Edmonton. A year ago it was 32 cents, so even with just half of last year's crop the farmer will get just as much money for it as he did for the 1932 crop. This, however, is partly offset by the upward trend in the cost of living.

It will be interesting to watch the working of President Roosevelt's scheme to shorten working hours as decrease wages as a means of bringing back prosperity. His plan to issue certificates to the owners of the Sunday school system of giving stars to all the good little boys. However, the Roosevelt plan seems to be popular, for employers all over the United States are falling in line. Perhaps their haste in doing so comes from selfish desires rather than national interest. A business man can't afford to let his competitors get ahead of him, so in order to maintain his prestige with the public he must fall in line with the recovery scheme which is meeting with widespread public approval.

Those who expected the legalization of beer in the United States to bring about a lessening of crime must be disappointed. The barons of the beer racket are not going to give up their easy wealth so readily and are probably responsible for the new kidnapping racket. The U. S. has a crime wave on its hands which can't be cleaned up with the mere passing of laws.

The Dominion government's reindeer scheme is one of the most interesting experiments undertaken in the far north. Three thousand reindeer were purchased in Alaska and moved to the Canadian Arctic regions to provide meat for the Eskimo tribes, whose wild caribou herds are said to be sadly depleted. These reindeer will provide meat and skins for clothing for Canada's Eskimos. The reindeer is a hardy animal, and thrives under semi-domestic conditions in Alaska. The Alaskan reindeer herds provide large quantities of meat for American Pacific coast cities, and it is even predicted that in future he will be the main source of meat supply for Canada and the United States.

"Just as the agricultural regions led the country back to prosperity in 1877 and 1897, so the farmer is again leading us back to prosperity in 1935," says the latest business review from Babson Park. But one wouldn't think so from the report of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics which states that "thousands of grain growers will have little to sell this year, no matter how high the price goes, and other thousands of livestock and poultry raisers are hurt, not helped, by higher prices."

After 21 years, of absence the Davis Cup was brought back to England this week by the Mother Country's brilliant young tennis stars. In defeating especially the Australian, American, and French teams, the British players proved themselves worthy cupholders.

LONG LIFE

Not so much the years you have lived
As how you have lived the years—
And whether you're dead in laughter.
Or whether you're awail in tears.
Or a short, short life and a merry one
Or a long, long life and not gay?
For a babe may have lived a century
And an old man not a day.

UNITED STATES CROP

FORECAST IN PERSPECTIVE
WASHINGTON, July 31.—The poorest crop, in years were forecast today by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

It said: "This is going to be one of the short crop years as regards the food and feed crops. It begins to resemble the drought year, 1933. The bureau's survey shows that 'corn over a wide area has tumbled out on stalks about four feet high,' and it added:

"Thousands of grain growers will have little to sell this year, no matter how high the price goes, and other thousands of livestock and poultry raisers are hurt, not helped, by high priced feeds."

"The rise in grain already has raised a serious problem for eastern dairymen and poultrymen," the bureau said.

U. S. SEEKS VIEWS OF IMPORTANT NATIONS ON WHEAT

LONDON, July 31.—President E. Murphy of Minneapolis, an American delegate in international wheat restriction conversation, will visit continental capitalists tonight to get the views of important nations in anticipation of the resumption of negotiations August 21.

Since the last meeting Thursday of representatives of Canada, the United States, Argentina and Australia, informal plans have been going forward with the result that their viewpoint is said to be stronger than ever.

Canada and Argentina are said to favor an acreage-reduction wholeheartedly with Australia willing to export. A slight difference of opinion prevented reaching an agreement last week.

CATTLE SAILED VIA HUBSON

RAY 200 YEARS AGO
CHURCHILL, Man., July 31.—Reopening of shipping activities at this Hudson Bay port, and the move to establish it as an ocean outlet for livestock shipments to the United Kingdom this summer, recalls the fact that 200 years ago, almost to the day, a cattle shipment arrived at Churchill from England.

The frigate "Mary," which arrived here from England on August 2, 1735, brought two oxen and two bulls. They were used to haul stone for the building of Fort Prince of Wales. Rules of this now historic story are still to be seen at the harbor entrance. It took years to build the structure, considered one of the strongest on the North American continent.

A HEALTH SERVICE OF ASSOCIATION AND LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANIES
IN CANADA

Beware of summer diarrhoea! To the parents of babies, we repeat the warning. Beware! Summer diarrhoea is one of the most fatal conditions which attacks young children. It brings death to over five thousand Canadian babies each year.

Most of the cases and deaths occur during the months of August and September, and this is the reason why, at this time, we wish to urge upon the parents of babies the need for such extra care as will protect their children.

The most important point in this case has to do with the milk which the child receives. If the baby is breast-fed, there is no danger in so far as his milk needs are concerned. For the child who is using cow milk it is absolutely essential that the milk be pure and clean. In warm weather there is a greater chance of contamination; there are other and other insects which may carry filth to unprotected milk, and germs multiply rapidly in warm milk.

It may be said that no raw milk is safe milk, at least for your children, and that it should be either pasteurized or boiled before using. This heating destroys the germs which may have entered the milk and which, although they may not cause disease in the baby, may often set up a diarrhoea in the baby.

Milk, after it has been prepared, must be kept cold and covered until it is used. There is no object in securing pure milk unless it is kept pure until it is used.

Babies should drink plenty of cool unswetened water. On hot days the baby needs more water and so should be given plenty of water. When the weather is very hot the baby needs little or no clothing. He is made comfortable by cool facts, and should be kept in the cooler shade during the heat of the day.

Summer diarrhoea should never be neglected. Prompt treatment would save the lives of many babies who now die. Because so many cases occur parents are apt to think that summer diarrhoea is not serious; they try the remedies that someone suggests and, in the meantime, the strength of the baby goes and it is too late to do anything for him. We do not wish to be alarmists, but it is difficult for us to forget the five thousand babies who die each year from summer diarrhoea, and that is why we say to parents, "Beware and take care!"

Questions concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College St., Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

Canadians to Visit Mysterious Bali

Photos by Herbert Hoffman

Bali, that mysterious tropical island off the coast of Java where Eve would have been almost enough to make a mystery. They have never heard of him—look like Gandhi, will be more than a name but no less a mystery to a number of lucky Canadians by this time next year.

For Bali, literally unknown until a motion picture director took his cameras and microphones there a year or so ago, has been added to the list of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain's 34th world cruise sailing from New York January fourth.

Halves, simple and unaffected, acted a charming love story for the screen. But they had to be taught what a kiss was. They live in a land of temples. Although education is not a strong point they can still count the few white people who have ever visited the island. They cannot count the number of dogs they own. They save the bones of their dead until the last member of a family dies and then bury them together. They worship bats and word that devils are abroad every man, woman, child and dog must play within doors so nothing will impede the demons' quick departure. They love to dance, and on March 9 and 10, 1934 are specially performing traditional dances for the Empress of Britain's world cruise.

In addition to Bali, new world cruise calls will be made by the big, white liner at Semarang, Java, and Zamboanga in the Sulu Archipelago. The cruise will visit 33 ports in 24 countries covering 90,000 miles in 150 days.

THIRTEENTH INSTALLMENT

"I'm coming again soon, alone, and then we'll... we'll get acquainted," stammered Joyce, she rose and lifting her head tenderly kissed Mrs. Packard lightly. Then she ran out of the room to Nell.

When they got back to the house Joyce was relieved to find that they had no company.

"Let's see what's on the radio to-night," suggested Nell. Joyce assented, rather curious to hear, she soon discovered that Nell's idea of enjoying the radio was to spend all his time and effort trying to get distant stations.

Joyce, bored finally at the superlatives of the unseen speaker who was boasting enthusiastically for the glories of California, sat up and said goodnight, hoping that Nell would remain downstairs.

Packard immediately shut off the radio and announced, his intention of accompanying her. By the air of happy expectation on his face, Joyce realized that she was about to reap the inevitable results of her friendliness toward him that day.

"She decided this time to take no chance of repeating the song incident and when they reached the bedroom she turned to him and said: "Good night, Nell, I'm going to read for a while."

"But, Frills, sweetheart," he began, detaining her, "you've been so wonderful today and I love you so I want you to, dear." He drew her closer into his arms, whispering the last words close to her ear. "Such adorable little ears," he said, kissing them again and again. "I'd be so happy if I were one of you."

"Listen, Nell," she said quietly, "won't you, if I ask you to return to me and as a return for being what you call a reasonable and sensible."

"I'm not sure," he said, "but I'll try to do my best for you."

"I'll be right with you," he said, "and I'll be right with you."

able, won't you please let me sleep in the other room without asking questions and going through this sort of thing every night?"

He paused and added hesitantly, "But—will you come of your own accord when you're ready?"

"Of course," promised Joyce hastily, suddenly extremely embarrassed by the conversation after her momentary self-confidence. She said good night again and went off to her room and shut the door.

The next night, when they were going upstairs, Nell said, "Look here, sweet, I like the devil to have you sleeping upstairs. You ought to be getting all this wonderful fresh air. Let me move your bed out to the other end of the porch. I won't bother you."

"Oh, there's plenty of fresh air in my room with all these windows open," returned Joyce hastily, "really it's just like being out of doors."

"Let me sleep indoors, then," he suggested, "generally," "and you sleep out here."

"I'm lots more comfortable inside here," he said, "and I'm more dependent on air than I am," he told him.

Nearly a fortnight later Joyce set off one morning on Route for an all-day ramble through the hills. She carried her radio and a book with her and told Roxie not to expect her back until late in the afternoon.

For in the hills Joyce had found a little group of pines on the edge of a towering redwood grove. When she lay down on her back with a little thrill of satisfaction she decided that he showed no evidence of missing the old Frills.

She had gone out practically every one who moved in their circle in Mansana and had found out enough of their history and circumstances so that she could get by safely in most cases.

The month was not yet up but Joyce, summarizing her impressions and the knowledge she had gathered felt that she had given her environment a fair study and was entitled to draw her conclusions and plan her future course without further research.

First, as to Nell, she had made a number of mistakes and clever discoveries concerning him. He was devoted to golf but did not care for dancing; he liked liquor but never drank to excess, and he liked risqué stories more than most of his acquaintances guessed. He believed in taking one's part in the life of the community but he would have been happy to stay at home four evenings out of a week to enjoy the quiet pleasures of private life.

On her return from San Francisco she had once more been forced to face the problem of her relations with Maitland. He had telephoned her called several times the first day while she was out, and on the second morning, just as she was ready for a ride on Route, he had appeared and caught her.

Joyce let her thoughts dwell dreamily for a moment on Maitland and instinctively she found herself comparing him with some of two men—Robert Alsworth and Nell Packard. Measured by Alsworth's standards Maitland had no chance at all—it was almost unfair even to compare them.

Maitland had once or twice attempted to reopen the subject of their love, but Joyce had continued to treat him with such unmitigated shamelessness that he was baffled and finally let her alone.

In her thoughts she now came back with a quickening of her pulses, to the problem of her relations with Nell. They had gone out together the evening before and cooked a camp supper high up on a hillside overlooking the valley. They lingered until it was dark, watched the stars creep out into their places, Joyce hugging her knees, sat and breathed in the peace and quiet while Nell stretched out close to her, smoking a pipe and playing gently with Dickie's ears.

Suddenly Nell had rolled over on her side and putting his arm around her waist, laid his head on her lap. Joyce found back resting his weight on her hands behind her and did not touch him. She had lately avoided every slightest demonstration of affection toward him, for she had come to the disconcerting conclusion more than once that Nell was finding it harder and harder to keep his feelings in check.

This could not help realizing that he was both unwise and unkind for her to slip her hand in his, to smooth back his hair, to lean against him when they sat together, to do any one of the dozens of little caressing things which she found herself, in her liking and pity for him, involuntarily, and quite innocently inclined to do.

The slightest motion of this sort sent a flame of hope leaping into Nell's eyes.

How long could this go on? It was becoming more and more difficult for them both. Joyce trembled a little at the recall of the conversations which Nell had finally released, in her liking and pity for him, involuntarily, and quite innocently inclined to do.

The slightest motion of this sort sent a flame of hope leaping into Nell's eyes.

was not wholly genuine, "I wish we might be friends. I do so like to be friends with everyone. If I don't say anything I'm do... I'm so sorry."

Who was this girl anyhow? wondered Joyce, slightly exasperated by her meek manner. There had evidently been some unpleasantness between Frills and her. But before she had to speak she was saved by the arrival of Nell.

"Well, look who's here! Hello, Joyce, how are you?" he exclaimed, shaking hands cordially with her. Joyce, abashed, murmured:

"Well, why not sit down? What's your hurry?" he went on in his heartiest manner. "Why do you know? How's the new car working?"

"Oh, it's just fine! But I must run along now. I just came to ask Frills if she'd help on the affair for the Orphan's Vacation Camp. Good-bye and thanks ever so much."

"Good-bye," said Joyce. She spoke shortly, more because she could not think of anything to say than because she wished to be disagreeable. Nell accompanied the caller out her room. Joyce, watching surreptitiously, was again amused to see the interest with which Nell listened to the appealing little glance Joyce Abbot threw at him from her expressive blue eyes.

"I've got her number," thought Joyce, as she watched the girl who clings and makes the men feel big and strong and masculine."

Thinking over the past month, Joyce was conscious of a baffled feeling of dissatisfaction when it came to her knowledge of Frills' own past.

In another direction also Joyce felt herself checked. She was nearer accomplishing her purpose of getting back her baby than she had been when she received the first letter from Sophie. A second letter had arrived that morning—expressing vaguely, very short and again missing an address. Joyce tormented herself trying to solve the problem, but her determination did not weaken.

Her thoughts swung round again to Nell. What was she going to do? She continued indefinitely living in the same house with him as they had been doing was impossible. She had not known what she was under taking when she made that decision.

"I suppose I should have gone away in the first place," she thought disconsolately. "But I realize now that I'm married to Nell Packard and I keep having the feeling that here's something all wrong about living with a man so intimately and yet not really intimately. I'll never lose that feeling of uncomfortable shyness and strangeness. I know, until unless—oh, dear!"

There might be among them a few congenial spirits but she did not feel any too hopeful. Yet after all, what did it matter? She reproved herself sharply for allowing the standards of Robert Alsworth to influence her. He was nothing to her, she told herself.

As she sat there motionless, she started to see a man appear with a little gasp of amazement. Joyce recognized Robert Alsworth.

"Do you remember me?" asked Joyce.

"Oh, Lord, how like a woman! Of course I remember you, worse luck!" he added with such profound fond that Joyce giggled. "You're my pub-

AIR TO BUZZ WITH RECORDS OF POLITICAL SPEECHES

HERE'S

FOR an inexpensive tire that will do a real job in delivering long, trouble-free mileage, we have never met the equal to the DUNLOP Pacemaker.

This tire, built to DUNLOP Cable Cord standards, gives exceptional mileage—and yet its price is as low as any of the so-called "bargain" tires.

Dunlop Tire Co. Convinced that all Road Worn tires are a waste of money, Dunlop has built this tire to last longer than any other.

Already the case for the government has been presented at political meetings along the Gaspé coast in Quebec a week ago.

In the western provinces Mr. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, has embarked on an extensive tour of six weeks, speaking at numerous places mainly in attacks upon the aspirations and radical plans for the Canadian Co-operative Federation party.

Mr. Bennett was to have left London for a health resort near Harrogate, Yorkshire, while Hon. J. C. Rhodes, minister of finance, and the others of the delegation to the world economic conference, were on the high seas, due to arrive in Quebec this week.

The great task facing Mr. Rhodes on his return, and which will probably be shared to a large degree by the prime minister when he arrives two weeks later, will be preparation for the big re-lending and conversion loan which it is expected will amount to something over $600,000,000.

And the Battle Waged—Wife: "Of course women are as capable as men. Why, I know a girl of twenty-two who gets the salary of a sales manager in a big business house."

Husband: "I don't doubt it, my dear. When did she marry him?"

Wife: "She married him when he was a clerk in a small business house."

Husband: "He looked at her quickly and broke into a smile. 'Here please let me take your horse and turn her out into the corral.'"

School Days

The teacher was having an arduous task drilling the principles of arithmetic into her youthful pupils. "Now, listen," she said. "In order to subtract, things have to be in the same denomination. This is what I mean: Now you couldn't take three apples from four peaches, nor six marbles from eight baskets. It must be three apples from four apples, and so on. Do you understand?"

The majority seemed to grasp the idea. But one youngster in the rear raised a timid hand. "Please, ma'am," he inquired. "Couldn't you take three quarters of milk from two cows?"

George Baldwin Golden filled an application for a patent covering the use of gasoline motor as propelling force for a road vehicle in 1897.

DECLARATIONS ORDERLY MARKETING IN CALGARY

REGINA, Sask., July 31.—Finance of world wheat supplies and the forecasting of future prices in wheat marketing, formed the chief subjects of discussion at Monday morning's session of the World's Grain Conference.

J. Ralph Pickell, editor of a forecasting service in Illinois, condemned overcast international business as applied to grain distribution. The slogan of the pools and co-operative organizations, "orderly marketing," he said, was "dead as the doo when the facts are examined."

The fact that the 40 lb. movement in the market 25 per cent since July and were not raised through the heaviest marketing months, showed the fallacy of orderly marketing. "Orderly marketing is a fallacy, a theory or a superstition," he said, arguing that the record of actual prices showed that the farmer made more money by selling his wheat as promptly as he could after harvest.

J. H. Wesson, vice president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, took issue with the statements of Mr. Pickell on the question of orderly marketing, and pointed out that it had benefited pool members.

CHECK PLACED ON LOW GRAIN PRICES IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, July 31.—Seeking to stem the downward trend in grain prices, directors of the Chicago Board of Trade after a protracted meeting tonight announced that "hereinafter shall be no future trading in grain and provisions below the clearing prices on grain and provisions Monday, July 31, 1933."

The ruling is effective until August 15.

The upward maximum fluctuations of five cents for wheat, barley and rye; four cents for corn, and three cents for oats, are not affected by the order.

The order curbing downward curbing in prices will remain in effect at least until the close of trading August 15, and if any change is to be made then three days' notice will be given members of the board, the announcement said.
